

Sarah Waring
Live-in Area Care Manager – London & Essex

Meet Sarah, your Live-in Area Care Manager for London & Essex

About me

Hello, I'm Sarah. As area care manager, I am responsible for the five live-in care managers in the London region as well as the live-in care coordinators based in Chelmsford, ensuring a safe service delivery for all of our live-in customers in the area.

I was inspired to join care when I was working for a commercial recruitment company as branch manager and I wanted a change in direction. I was offered a position within a large healthcare organisation; it evolved from there and I've never looked back.

Experience and expertise

I've worked in the care sector for just over 15 years, holding a Registered Manager's position for 14 years. More recently, I worked within the Essex area supporting three health care branches across the county, and I have also worked with smaller health care organisations as a branch manager.

I have a Level 4 NVQ in Leadership & Management and a Level 3 in Safeguarding.

Why I chose Helping Hands

Having previously worked for some large organisations, I was looking for an opportunity with a company that was built on reputation and quality. Helping Hands was one of the companies that I had been made aware of in my previous roles, and their reputation and support always seemed very positive.

I think it's fantastic the way that the company supports the carers. Carer engagement is key to what we do to ensure our customers are well looked after, and Helping Hands are always sure to deliver the service that we promise to our clients.
